

KITCHEN BLOG

Kids' Kitchen

Perhaps it's due to the popularity of Food Network programming. Or perhaps concerns over childhood obesity have prompted parents to take a more hands-on approach to nutrition.

Regardless, a rising demand for kids' cookware has retailers designing with young chefs in mind. Next month, Fiesta Products debuts Head Chefs, a set of five brightly colored cook's tools, consisting of a mixing spoon, whisk, measuring tool, basting brush, and spatula. Each tool has a bendable, silicone body, and suction cups for feet, so it can stand alone.

Posted by: Audrey Tempelman on Feb 17, 08 at 01:42 AM PST